

Restorative Practices and Justice: What are they and how do they work?

Join the Hopkins Race and Equity Initiative for a community conversation to learn about Restorative Practices and Restorative Justice, and see how they work to build healthy equitable communities.

Wednesday, October 25 • 6 to 8 p.m.
Eisenhower Community Center Cafeteria

1001 Highway 7, Hopkins

Jimmie Heags Jr.

Jimmie Heags Jr. has worked in the field of education and counseling and with Restorative Practices specifically for more than 15 years. He has a trauma informed certificate from the University of Minnesota and a master's degree in psychotherapy from Adler Graduate School, and holds licenses in School, Clinical and Drug and Alcohol Counseling. He is a member of the Minneapolis NAACP and has served as their Integrated Health Committee chair.

Nancy Riestenberg

Nancy Riestenberg is the Restorative Practices Specialist at the Minnesota Department Of Education Equity, Diversity and Inclusion Center. She works with school districts and restorative practitioners to bring relational practices to educational communities. Nancy wrote Circle in the Square: Building Community and Repairing Harm in School.

Tina Sigel

Tina Sigel is the Program Manager for Restorative Justice Community Action (RJCA).

She is also a trained circle keeper for the Youth Restorative Justice Disposition program. She is a frequent speaker and participant in restorative justice education in Minnesota's Correctional facilities, in addition to other public and academic forums. She holds a bachelor's degree in Sociology from Boston University.

CEUs available

Sponsored by the Hopkins Race and Equity Initiative
Hopkins Public Schools • City of Hopkins
Hopkins Police Department • Gethsemane Lutheran Church

www.hopkinsmn.com/HREI